

This is just to voice my objection to allowing Burlington to impose its own version of gun control. It will set in motion an ever shifting landscape of town-specific regulation that can end up making Vermont look like Massachusetts. Before I get into my vehicle to go somewhere in my own State I should not have to first research what each Town's gun regulations are that I might be going to. There is no way that this could be contained to Burlington, but even if it somehow were, why should I have less rights when I go to Burlington than I do when I go anywhere else in Vermont? Please do not let this ill thought out legislation proceed. Thank you.

Bob Underhill
Clarendon, VT