

“Local libraries with enough bandwidth to quickly transfer data, images and video are vital assets to Vermont communities,” said Lt. Governor Phil Scott. “By gaining access to high-speed fiber, the tools are now there for our libraries to serve as central hubs for community meetings and disaster response centers – while continuing to be state-of-the-art resources for Vermonters of all ages.”