

I am fully against abortion. I believe there are many other options and women still have choices that don't involve killing an innocent life. The government should be looking for ways to better help women in unplanned pregnancies. Abortion is wrong! It's no one's place or right to take a life because of convenience! The line of right or wrong gets harder to define if you believe a baby has no rights until he's born, what if a mother tries to have an abortion but it doesn't work and the baby is born, does she have a right to kill the born baby? Because moments before his birth he was considered not a human!? In the case of a mother's health there are many ways of keeping the mother healthy until the baby can be born via emergency C-section. The mother and baby can be assisted medically to save both lives. It's unethical to take a life to save another, it's also unnecessary. Saving a life is hard work and uncomfortable and challenging but always worth the effort!

I hope you will take in consideration not only what's best for the women but also the baby! Both lives are important and need to be protected!

Sincerely,
