

believe this law is too strong and no law should be 100% one way or the other. I think that with our current technology and health care, there is no reason a woman should ever get to the end of her pregnancy and choose abortion. Many say the child growing inside a woman is not living. However, as a science teacher we are taught to teach that one celled organisms are living things. Our bodies are made up of more cells than we can count. The cells that create life, sperm and egg are living. Yet the fetus is not? I have brought animal fetuses to school to learn from and the students are devastated because the animal fetus was killed. If young students can see a fetus as a living being then why can adults not see this? Are we trying to justify decisions that some have made, to make it ok. Life is life, even before it comes from the womb. We have created so many laws to protect animals and yet we take our own children's lives before they can defend themselves. My last point is for our fathers. The baby does not grow in their body, but the fetus is half theirs. Fathers should have some rights in this decision. Please consider changing this law you are about to put into effect. Unborn lives depend on it. My own life almost ended in abortion, thankfully my parents chose to have me.

Thank you for considering my thoughts,
