Re: H.562 – Professional Regulations/Social Workers

NASW-VT supports amending H.562 to include language that would prohibit individuals from calling themselves social workers unless they have certain educational credentials related to social work.

H.282 required some state agencies and NASW-VT to come together to address the use of the term “social worker”. The report found that DCF, DVHA, VDH, the Veterans’ Home, and DMH use the term “social worker” to describe certain employment positions. They also discovered that AOE lists “school social workers” as a licensed teacher “endorsement” – they are employed by school districts, but AOE has created and given a title to this group.

The OPR Report Recommendations

“To eliminate confusing or misleading use of the term OPR favors restricting use of the term “social worker” by state agencies. The term “social worker” should be limited to those positions which require social work education acquired in an appropriately accredited social work program.
