Virginia state legislator Dawn Adams apologized for not reading a proposed abortion bill closely before she cosponsored the measure. What a shame that we have representatives signing on to issues without full knowledge of what they are looking to sign into law. Actually it's not a shame, it's an atrocity! No one should be voting on something without fully knowing what it entails and what the future consequences will be. So here I have a proposal. I have watched only a few seconds of a video that shows a partial birth abortion. I had to stop. It was so gruesome! So I ask anyone who will be voting on this bill this question. Do you have the courage to watch one of these videos and face what is happening during an abortion? Better yet, would any of you be willing to stand next to a person who is cutting a leg or an arm off and watch the blood flow. In the video I saw, the limbs weren't torn apart because the baby was partially out of the womb. The baby's legs were kicking as the doctor punctured its skull and with blood oozing out of its head, the baby's brain was sucked out and the head crushed in order for it to completely exit the womb. Oh but you say, we are not proposing partial birth abortion. We are proposing Late term abortion which accomplishes the same results but with lethal injection into the baby's heart while still completely in the womb. The baby is then born dead a few days later. Tell me, is this any less inhumane? This is an appeal to your character and values as a human being. Let's not go down this road that will take so many restrictions away from abortion and may even lead to further atrocities. Let's instead work together to come up with a better solution; one that embodies human decency and preserves the character and values we hold dear as Vermonters, Americans and, in general stewards of this world.

Dawn Adams regretted her yes vote. Will you?

Respectfully,
